

TWO STATE CASES ON CALENDAR TODAY

Appeals of Murray and Mewhinney Are First on the List.

The state supreme court will begin its October term tomorrow morning with the hearing of the appeal of John Murray, convicted of highway robbery and sentenced to life imprisonment in the state prison. Murray was the pal of J. J. Morris in the robbery of the Uncle Sam pawnshop in First South street and in the escape from which Morris killed J. Walter Axtell, for which crime he (Morris) was later executed by hanging at the state penitentiary. Murray escaped a similar fate by reason of the fact that he was placed under arrest for the robbery a minute or two before the shooting occurred, a block away.

The appeal of Harley Mewhinney, convicted murderer of C. L. Erickson, in the Ramona rooming house, October 6, 1911, is also on the calendar for hearing tomorrow. Mewhinney and Sam Kirkpatrick, the latter now serving twenty years in the state penitentiary, went to the rooming house and there endeavored to rob a man in the room of Mrs. Marie Fuller. In the course of the robbery Erickson tried to come to the rescue and was shot in the back by Kirkpatrick, who pleaded guilty to participation in the crime and was sentenced to twenty years. Mewhinney stood trial and was found guilty and sentenced to be executed by shooting. However, it is possible that both cases may go to the foot of the calendar on motion of the attorney general.

In the criminal division of the Third district court, the trial of Alfred Sorenson, charged with the murder of Thomas McGillis, is on the calendar for tomorrow. It is expected that the hearing in the Sorenson case will be largely attended, owing to the political connections of the accused, who was prominent in the Socialist ranks.

Judge O. N. Hilton of Colorado is in Salt Lake for the purpose of defending Sorenson. Originally Attorney Willard Hanson was in charge of the case, but when he became implicated in the bribery charges recently at police headquarters Judge Hilton was retained by Sorenson.

Constipation Vanishes Forever

Prompt Relief—Permanent Cure
CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS never fail. Purely vegetable—act surely but gently on the liver. Stop after dinner—discomforts—cure indigestion—improve the complexion—brighten the eyes. Small Pill, Small Dose, Small Price. Genuine must bear Signature Wm. Wood

What Is the Perfect Proposal of Marriage?

WOMEN TELL HOW BASHFUL YOUNG MEN MAY WIN THE GIRLS THEY LOVE

By Margaret Hubbard Ayer.

WHAT is the perfect proposal? If your best beau were to offer you hand and heart, as, of course, it is expected that he will do, in what way should he propose?

How should he word that little speech which is to make you happiest among women?

Every girl dreams of what her first proposal will be like, and usually that episode is wreathed in all the poetic and romantic fancies of which her imagination is capable.

If you could have your choice, in just what setting, under just what circumstances, and just how would he propose?

Would it be a proposal a la Robert Chambers, the seething and glowing kind, set in a most expensive brocade and perfumed environment, redolent of high society, or would it be a simple Mary Wilkins-like affair?

Would it be a proposal over the telephone by wireless or cablegram?

To start off in the search and more or less to encourage the bashful, I asked three well-known women what their idea of the ideal proposal would be.

First, I went in search of Mrs. Arthur A. Brooks, the president of the Gotham club and a member of scores of other clubs. Mrs. Brooks is a handsome brunette, with flashing blue eyes, and one can well believe that she's had much personal experience and is an excellent judge of what a good proposal ought to sound like.

"The ideal proposal," said Mrs. Brooks, "is one that's accepted, and where there is never any regret. But you oughtn't ask me such questions; I have a grown-up son, you know, and it's a long time since I thought of anything like that. However, I heard the other day of an interesting proposal, which would appeal to those who like unique adventures."

"A young man and a young woman had been friends for a number of years. He had never proposed to her directly, though it had been generally understood that they were well fitted to each other and would probably marry."

"Suddenly, out of the clear sky he telegraphed her about a dozen miles away. 'Let me know what day and hour you will be at the door of your hotel. The cave man from the woods will swoop down and carry you away by the hair of your head.'"

Her "Hovel" a Mansion.

"She wired back, 'Three o'clock on Tuesday,' and lo, and behold, exactly at 3 o'clock she stood at the door of her hovel, which was really a magnificent Colonial mansion, with a garage that held three automobiles, and everything that could be desired."

"Her suitor arrived in his automobile, and they set out to find a clergyman. On their way, they met her grandmother out driving. 'Come on, grandmother, I'm going to be married to this cave man from the woods,' cried the girl."

"Of course, the grandmother thought they were joking, and said she had a very important call to make on a sick friend."

"But we're really and truly going to be married," said the young couple. "Well, children, if after all these years, you've at last gotten as far as that, I'll postpone my call and come along with you," said the grandmother."

"Eventually they found a clergyman and were married."

Bride Still "Trousseauing."

"And did they live happily ever after, Mrs. Brooks?" I asked.

"They haven't begun yet. I saw him a couple of weeks after the wedding and asked him how his bride was. He said, 'Oh, she's still 'trousseauing,' as the proposal and the marriage were so nearly simultaneous that she had no time to attend to that very important item—her trousseau.'"

"However, they thought they were most romantic, because they alluded to their home as hovel, and he felt that he had all the chivalry of an impetuous young Lochinvar and some of the fascination of the cave man."

"I remember a long time ago a personal experience with a millionaire who had made his fortune mining. He worded his proposals always in the same manner: 'When will Anita share—' a but."

"He wrote it in letters and sent it by wire, and for a long time he got no response at all, though he probably wondered why a proposal that sounded so romantic should be met with absolute silence."

"A millionaire's proposal should not be taken too seriously, he should be given plenty of time to change his mind; it's better that he should do it before than after marriage."

While Mrs. Brooks's young suitor aimed to be romantic, Miss Mabel Hill, artist and teacher, declared the man who tries to be chivalrous and only succeeds in being ridiculous.

"Certainly we don't expect a man to go down on one knee in offering his hand to a woman, though that was the accepted fashion years ago. Men who took this humble position before the lady of their heart, were quite capable of being brutal and cruel to her after marriage, and modern times, which have brought a little less chivalry, have opened woman's eyes to the hypocrisy which it so often concealed."

The Question of Support.

Miss Eleanor Mullin, who is a practical young business woman, says: "The ideal proposal should combine sentiment with a sense of practical responsibility. It is no longer sufficient to say, 'Oh, come with me and be my bride.' The modern man must be able to add, 'I can support you.' Though, of course, this rather sordid element should be cloaked in the proper words and hinted at rather than expressed."

"Most men dread proposing because they are afraid it makes them ridiculous. One man of my acquaintance is so morbidly afraid of ridicule that he says, 'The only way I can ever propose is to lock myself up in a vault, for I should say so many ridiculous things that I won't want anybody to hear me.'"

But how about the best girl? She wouldn't be able to hear either. Now I am anxious to know what the Evening Journal readers, the men as well as the girls, consider an ideal proposal of marriage.

There's many an auto bargain arranged by means of The Tribune's Want Columns. The changing of makes and models, trading securities for autos—all such information forms part of The Wants.

ASSESSMENT NO. 1.

The Tar Baby Mining company, principal place of business, Salt Lake City. Location of mines, South Fork, Big Cottonwood canyon. Notice is hereby given that at a meeting of the board of directors of the Tar Baby Mining company, held on the 2nd day of June, 1912, assessment No. 2 of one-fourth (1/4) cents per share was levied upon the capital stock of the corporation, issued and outstanding, payable immediately to W. W. Trimmer, Continental National Bank, East Second South, Salt Lake City, Utah, or F. F. Hintze, Murray R. F. D. No. 4.

Any stock upon which this assessment may remain unpaid on the 2nd day of November, 1912, will be delinquent and advertised for sale at public auction, and unless payment is made before, will be sold on the 2nd day of December, 1912, at 322 Atlas block, at 2 o'clock p. m., at the company's office, to pay this assessment, together with the costs of advertising and expense of sale.

F. F. HINTZE, Secretary.

First publication October 4, 1912. 1064

CROSS OR FEVERISH, HALF-SICK CHILDREN

If tongue is coated, breath bad, stomach sour, it means a torpid liver and clogged bowels.

Mother! Don't scold your cross, peevish child! Look at the tongue! See if it is white, yellow and coated! If your child is listless, drooping, isn't sleeping well, is restless, doesn't eat heartily or is cross, irritable, out of sorts with everybody, stomach sour, feverish, breath bad, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, or is full of cold, it means the little one's stomach, liver and 30 feet of bowels are filled with poisons and foul constipated waste matter and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

Give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours all the clogged up waste, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of its little waste clogged bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you will surely have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drug-ging your children, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aro-matics it cannot be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious taste.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator needed—a little given today will save a sick child tomorrow.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious-tasting, genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered. (Advertisement.)

understood that they were well fitted to each other and would probably marry.

"Suddenly, out of the clear sky he telegraphed her about a dozen miles away. 'Let me know what day and hour you will be at the door of your hovel. The cave man from the woods will swoop down and carry you away by the hair of your head.'"

Her "Hovel" a Mansion.

"She wired back, 'Three o'clock on Tuesday,' and lo, and behold, exactly at 3 o'clock she stood at the door of her hovel, which was really a magnificent Colonial mansion, with a garage that held three automobiles, and everything that could be desired."

"Her suitor arrived in his automobile, and they set out to find a clergyman. On their way, they met her grandmother out driving. 'Come on, grandmother, I'm going to be married to this cave man from the woods,' cried the girl."

"Of course, the grandmother thought they were joking, and said she had a very important call to make on a sick friend."

"But we're really and truly going to be married," said the young couple. "Well, children, if after all these years, you've at last gotten as far as that, I'll postpone my call and come along with you," said the grandmother."

"Eventually they found a clergyman and were married."

Bride Still "Trousseauing."

"And did they live happily ever after, Mrs. Brooks?" I asked.

"They haven't begun yet. I saw him a couple of weeks after the wedding and asked him how his bride was. He said, 'Oh, she's still 'trousseauing,' as the proposal and the marriage were so nearly simultaneous that she had no time to attend to that very important item—her trousseau.'"

"However, they thought they were most romantic, because they alluded to their home as hovel, and he felt that he had all the chivalry of an impetuous young Lochinvar and some of the fascination of the cave man."

"I remember a long time ago a personal experience with a millionaire who had made his fortune mining. He worded his proposals always in the same manner: 'When will Anita share—' a but."

"He wrote it in letters and sent it by wire, and for a long time he got no response at all, though he probably wondered why a proposal that sounded so romantic should be met with absolute silence."

"A millionaire's proposal should not be taken too seriously, he should be given plenty of time to change his mind; it's better that he should do it before than after marriage."

While Mrs. Brooks's young suitor aimed to be romantic, Miss Mabel Hill, artist and teacher, declared the man who tries to be chivalrous and only succeeds in being ridiculous.

"Certainly we don't expect a man to go down on one knee in offering his hand to a woman, though that was the accepted fashion years ago. Men who took this humble position before the lady of their heart, were quite capable of being brutal and cruel to her after marriage, and modern times, which have brought a little less chivalry, have opened woman's eyes to the hypocrisy which it so often concealed."

The Question of Support.

Miss Eleanor Mullin, who is a practical young business woman, says: "The ideal proposal should combine sentiment with a sense of practical responsibility. It is no longer sufficient to say, 'Oh, come with me and be my bride.' The modern man must be able to add, 'I can support you.' Though, of course, this rather sordid element should be cloaked in the proper words and hinted at rather than expressed."

"Most men dread proposing because they are afraid it makes them ridiculous. One man of my acquaintance is so morbidly afraid of ridicule that he says, 'The only way I can ever propose is to lock myself up in a vault, for I should say so many ridiculous things that I won't want anybody to hear me.'"

But how about the best girl? She wouldn't be able to hear either. Now I am anxious to know what the Evening Journal readers, the men as well as the girls, consider an ideal proposal of marriage.

There's many an auto bargain arranged by means of The Tribune's Want Columns. The changing of makes and models, trading securities for autos—all such information forms part of The Wants.

ASSESSMENT NO. 1.

The Tar Baby Mining company, principal place of business, Salt Lake City. Location of mines, South Fork, Big Cottonwood canyon. Notice is hereby given that at a meeting of the board of directors of the Tar Baby Mining company, held on the 2nd day of June, 1912, assessment No. 2 of one-fourth (1/4) cents per share was levied upon the capital stock of the corporation, issued and outstanding, payable immediately to W. W. Trimmer, Continental National Bank, East Second South, Salt Lake City, Utah, or F. F. Hintze, Murray R. F. D. No. 4.

Any stock upon which this assessment may remain unpaid on the 2nd day of November, 1912, will be delinquent and advertised for sale at public auction, and unless payment is made before, will be sold on the 2nd day of December, 1912, at 322 Atlas block, at 2 o'clock p. m., at the company's office, to pay this assessment, together with the costs of advertising and expense of sale.

F. F. HINTZE, Secretary.

First publication October 4, 1912. 1064

Cohn's
DRY GOODS STORE
222-224 MAIN ST.

"Mérode" (Hand Finished) Underwear

"Mérode" (Hand Finished) Underwear

will be on sale during the week beginning
Monday, October 14th

We shall display in our show window and department this Superb Underwear.

On account of the Many New and Desirable Lines which we have included in our unusually well Assorted Stock, we have decided that the best way to introduce these lines to our Customers in a practical manner, is to devote the entire week to proper Demonstration, Showing and Selling of—

"Mérode" (Hand Finished) Underwear

Critical women who are familiar with the many excellencies of "Mérode" (Hand-finished) Underwear, cannot be induced to consider any other.

Our salespeople will be pleased to show and give full information about this Beautifully Hand-finished Underwear, and we cordially invite all to take advantage of the Week's Selling while the stock is complete.

"Mérode" (Hand Finished) Underwear

The Social Swims

that are being held at the Sanitarium Hot Springs Baths are proving very successful. Every evening crowd of the better class of people may be seen enjoying themselves in the big pool. There's only one trouble, however—the time passes so quickly that it's time to go home before you get half ready. Come over today and bring some friends with you. 25c per person, including suite, when accompanied by ladies. Large pool for men only. "Catering to the better element."

ROYAL
Baking Powder
Absolutely Pure

EMORGANSON'S
SAPOLIO
CLEANS : SCOURS : POLISHES
SOLID CAKE—NO WASTE

UNION DENTAL CO.
212 MAIN STREET.
Honest Work
Honest Prices
Painless extraction of teeth or no pain
All work guaranteed.
REMEMBER US.
We Treat You Right
Office hours: 8:30 a. m. to 5 p. m.
Sundays, 10 to 2. Phone 1128.

PHONE EX. 200

REGAL

INCORPORATED

Cleaning & Dyeing Co.

ONE OF OUR BRANCH OFFICES, NORTHEAST CORNER 1ST SOUTH AND STATE STREET.

As a result of the high quality of work and good service given by the Regal Cleaning & Dyeing Co., it has been necessary to establish branch offices about the city to facilitate the handling of work and also to add to the convenience of customers. In all, this company maintains four offices. In addition to the main office at 156-160 East Second South, there is a branch at First South and State street, one at 112 East Second South and one in the Salt Lake theater. The office in the theater is for the special accommodation of theatrical companies. In the past the Regal has done most of the important work for the traveling theatrical companies. Considering that this is the very highest class of work and calls for the most particular treatment, the fact that most of it comes to the Regal is evidence that the work is of a superior character.

People who have had work done in the leading cities of America say that the work done by the Regal is equal to any.

Main Office and Works, 156-160 East 2nd South

PHONE EX. 200